What's News In Library Service

FOR THE INFORMATION OF ILLINOIS LIBRARIANS, the Illinois State Library and the University of Illinois Library wish to call attention to a longstanding agreement between the two institutions. According to this understanding, there is a clear division of responsibility for lending to other libraries and to citizens of the state.

One of the chief functions of the Illinois State Library is to lend books to the public, school, and other libraries of Illinois on a supplementary basis. In addition individuals lacking local library facilities are provided with materials as necessary. The University Library, on the other hand, undertakes to provide only specialized research materials not available through the State Library. Furthermore, loans from the University are ordinarily made only to libraries and not to individuals.

The agreement between the State Library and the University Library was made for the purpose of eliminating duplication of material and unnecessary overlapping of activities in state-supported library programs.

Only the kind of book which falsifies life is really "dirty," according to one of America's noted authors—Jessamyn West—who spoke Wednesday (June 20) night at the Third General Session of the American Library Association's 75th Annual Conference in Miami Beach. (at the Auditorium).

Miss West, author of "Cress Delehanty," and many other novels and short stories, declared:

". . . . I think we make a great mistake when we guard our young people from books with ugly truths, but permit and even encourage them to read those which tell pretty lies. The ugly story, which does not misrepresent life, may come too early to the young reader. The false book, though its surface be satin smooth, is wrong or hurtful, early or late.

". . . . There is then only one kind of dirty book and that is the book that falsifies life—and whether the falsification is in the direction of the tough or the tender matters probably less than we think.

"The falsely tender, falsely sweet, falsely romantic book will always probably be more appealing and hence potentially capable of doing more harm to the young girl than the falsely tough. Brutal truths have damaged all of us less than false attitudes, spurious emotions. I confess that I do not know how such damaging books can be kept out of the hands of young people. But I writhe when I remember the hours wasted on their mendacities —hours and mendacities which still mark me. And I writhe when I remember the books I missed reading at the right time because of them.

"I believe that short of life saving itself there is no more blessed act on this earth than the spirit saving act of putting into the hands of a hungry child a book which will sustain him imaginatively, feed him morally and refresh him aesthetically."
